RE: Federal Gun Control Law

In most family law cases, mutual injunctions are issued restricting both parties from doing certain acts. The following are examples of the injunctions entered:

Communicating with the other party in person, by telephone, or in writing in vulgar, profane, obscene, or indecent language or in a coarse or offensive manner.

Threatening the other party in person, by telephone, or in writing to take unlawful action against any person.

Placing one or more telephone calls, anonymously, at any unreasonable hour, in an offensive and repetitious manner, or without a legitimate purpose of communication.

Causing bodily injury to the other party or a child of either party.

Threatening the other party or a child of either party with imminent bodily injury.

A Federal law exists which prohibits any person from possessing a firearm or ammunition if they are subject to an order regarding family violence or an order which enjoins that person from harassing, threatening or stalking another person. (18 U.S.C. 921, et seq)

If the above type of injunctions are issued and you are in the possession of a firearm or ammunition, you will be in violation of this Federal law. If such injunctions issue, immediately remove all firearms and ammunition from your possession and store them with a trusted third party during the pendency of this case.

When your case is completed and the injunctions are terminated, this Federal law will no longer apply to you.
